About Solutions to Problems:

Solutions to Problems is a Dear-Abbey style advice column set on a space station an indeterminate amount of time in the future. Hosts Janet Clarke, a human, and Loaf, an alien, help solve problems ranging from "My boyfriend was duplicated in a transporter accident" to "My brother's husband has a secret family in 1842." Some of the issues revolve around technology, and some around cultural misunderstandings between humans and aliens. Through it all Janet and Loaf have their own issues to work through, and a cast of exciting characters wandering in and out of the studio just to keep things interesting.

Our Story:

Nathan, Austin, and Michael met through the Boston poetry scene at some point in 2012. Nathan and Austin started writing Solutions to Problems in late 2017, inspired by popular advice shows like Dear Prudence, and also by poorly-thought out episodes of Star Trek and Dr. Who. Sometime in early 2018 they realized they knew very little about sound design and brought on Michael, and thus the team was born. They released the first episode in August of 2018 and since then have been downloaded over 7,000 times.

What people are saying about us:

"Solutions to Problems is a welcome addition to the comedy audio drama family as well as the science fiction audio drama family… Solutions to Problems feels like the Futurama audio drama that fans deserved." -Wil Williams, "Wil Williams Reviews"

"If you wanted Dear Abby letters in space, this is the show for you. A relationship advice radio show hosted by Janet and dolphin noise, they tackle some of the most and least relatable problems in the galaxy with humor, teamwork, and something vaguely resembling sensitivity. It has not once failed to make me laugh." -Elena Fernandez-Collins, "The Bello Collective"
